outlines framing small details
filling a student's four years at CHS:

. . . entering the silent chapel before an important exam,
sprinting between buildings during a downpour, shouting V-I-C-T-O-R-Y for the first time, hearing Monsignor call you by name . . .

. . . a few vivid moments

Understanding, logic, skill . . .

Hourly, students jostle through halls . . .
file along garden walks . . . stroll, skip, saunter, sweep into classes — the core of Calvert life —

discovering through religion that God is not dead . . . selecting research materials from walls of facts . . .
preparing twenty pages of History —
the wrong twenty pages . . . snapping the point of that last pencil during an algebra exam . . . working under the overpowering influence of sulphur fumes . . .
sacrificing carefully-nutured fingernails to a merciless typewriter.

Classroom atmosphere mellows
as the year ages
with progress, pranks, pitfalls.

Piece by piece,
facts and rules
merge into knowledge.

Boneyard laborers Paul Panuto and Richard Chadwick seem to know their business as they present to classmates a demonstration speech entitled "How To Dig a Grave."

The fourth dimension of space intrigues civics student Allen Daniel as he views a scale model of a simulated Gemini earth orbit.

humanities encourage interested participation

Tags and tables, chairs and lamps congregate in the religion notes of senior budget-benders Jane Buchman and Philip Kuebler as they juggle figures in a famous assignment.

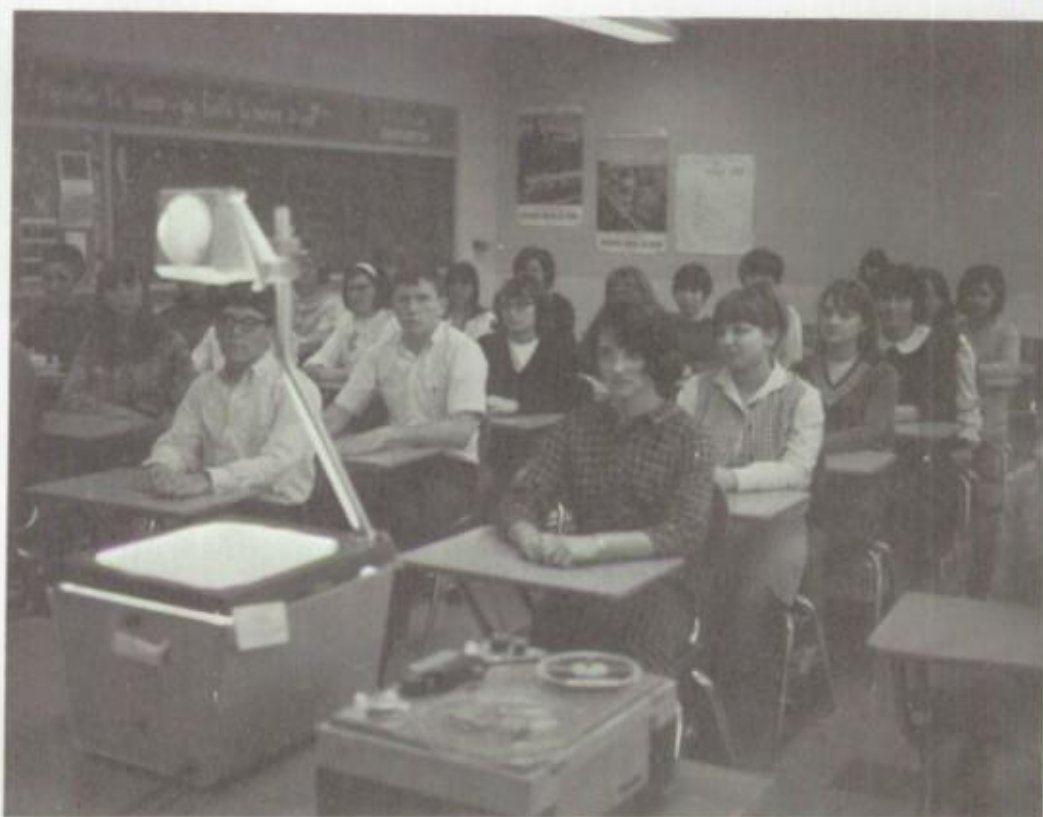

Toil and troubles boil in bubbles of baboon blood as senior sorceress' Beth Ranker, Jane Elchert and Linda Ranker enact a scene from Macbeth for their English class.

history, language transmit culture

While studying contemporary world history, Lawrence Kramer uses a map to indicate to classmates Marcia Muller and Barbara Maiberger the principal industrial centers of Red China.

Correspondence between French and American schools forms part of P.T.P., People to People, a program of international understanding for second-year French students.

Delving super-deep, Elizabeth Tiell uncovers American history terms.

A colorful Spanish-American doll helps exchange student Maria Eugenia Cabrera illustrate to a first-year Spanish class some customs of her native Guatemala.

Arranging a transparency on the overhead projector, freshmen Susan Mathias and David Kraft prepare to illustrate the conjugation of a Latin verb.

Although some people might prefer this length, Dianna Stofer prepares to alter the hemline of Michelle Dryfuse's skirt.

study of scientific

To determine the volume of water under natural conditions, physics students Linda Ranker, Anthony Kuebler and Barbara Smith combine accepted facts with experimental data.

Enlarged models enable chemistry students Ronald Betz, Kay Warnement, Anne Sexton and Joseph Elchert to form mental images of molecular structures.

principles results in future discoveries

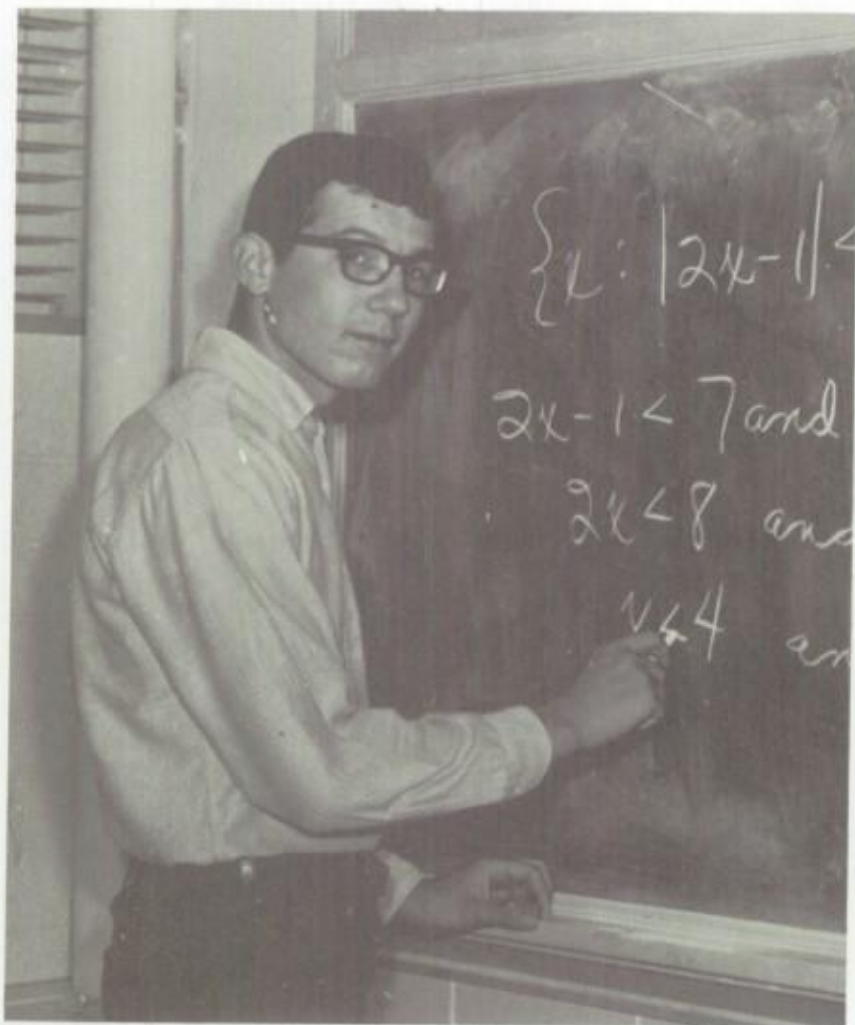

Sighs of relief escape from Mary Lieben-good and Teresa Distel as they admire the finished products — their fall bouquets.

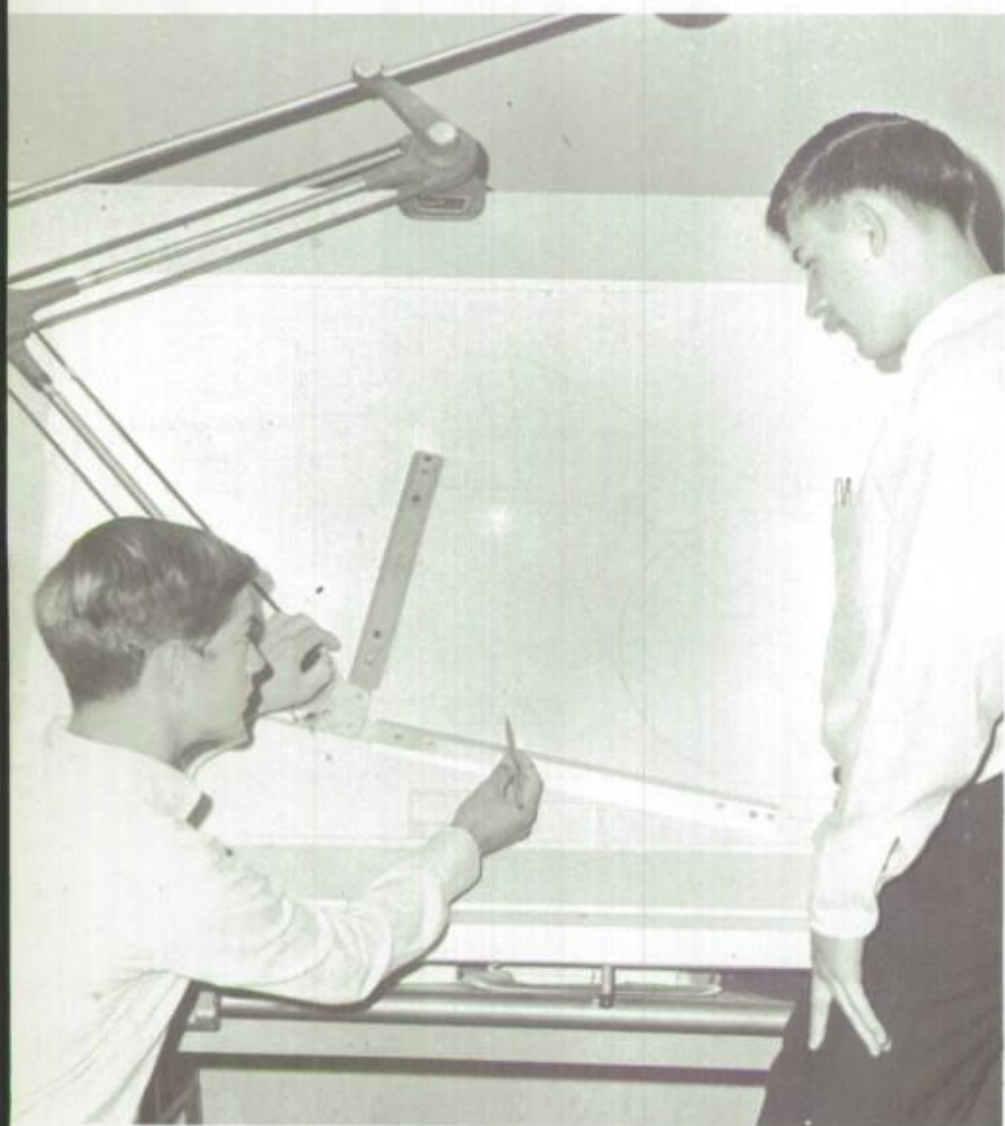

With the help of Seymour Bonaparte, Dennis Distel attempts to get to the bone of the matter in physiology class.

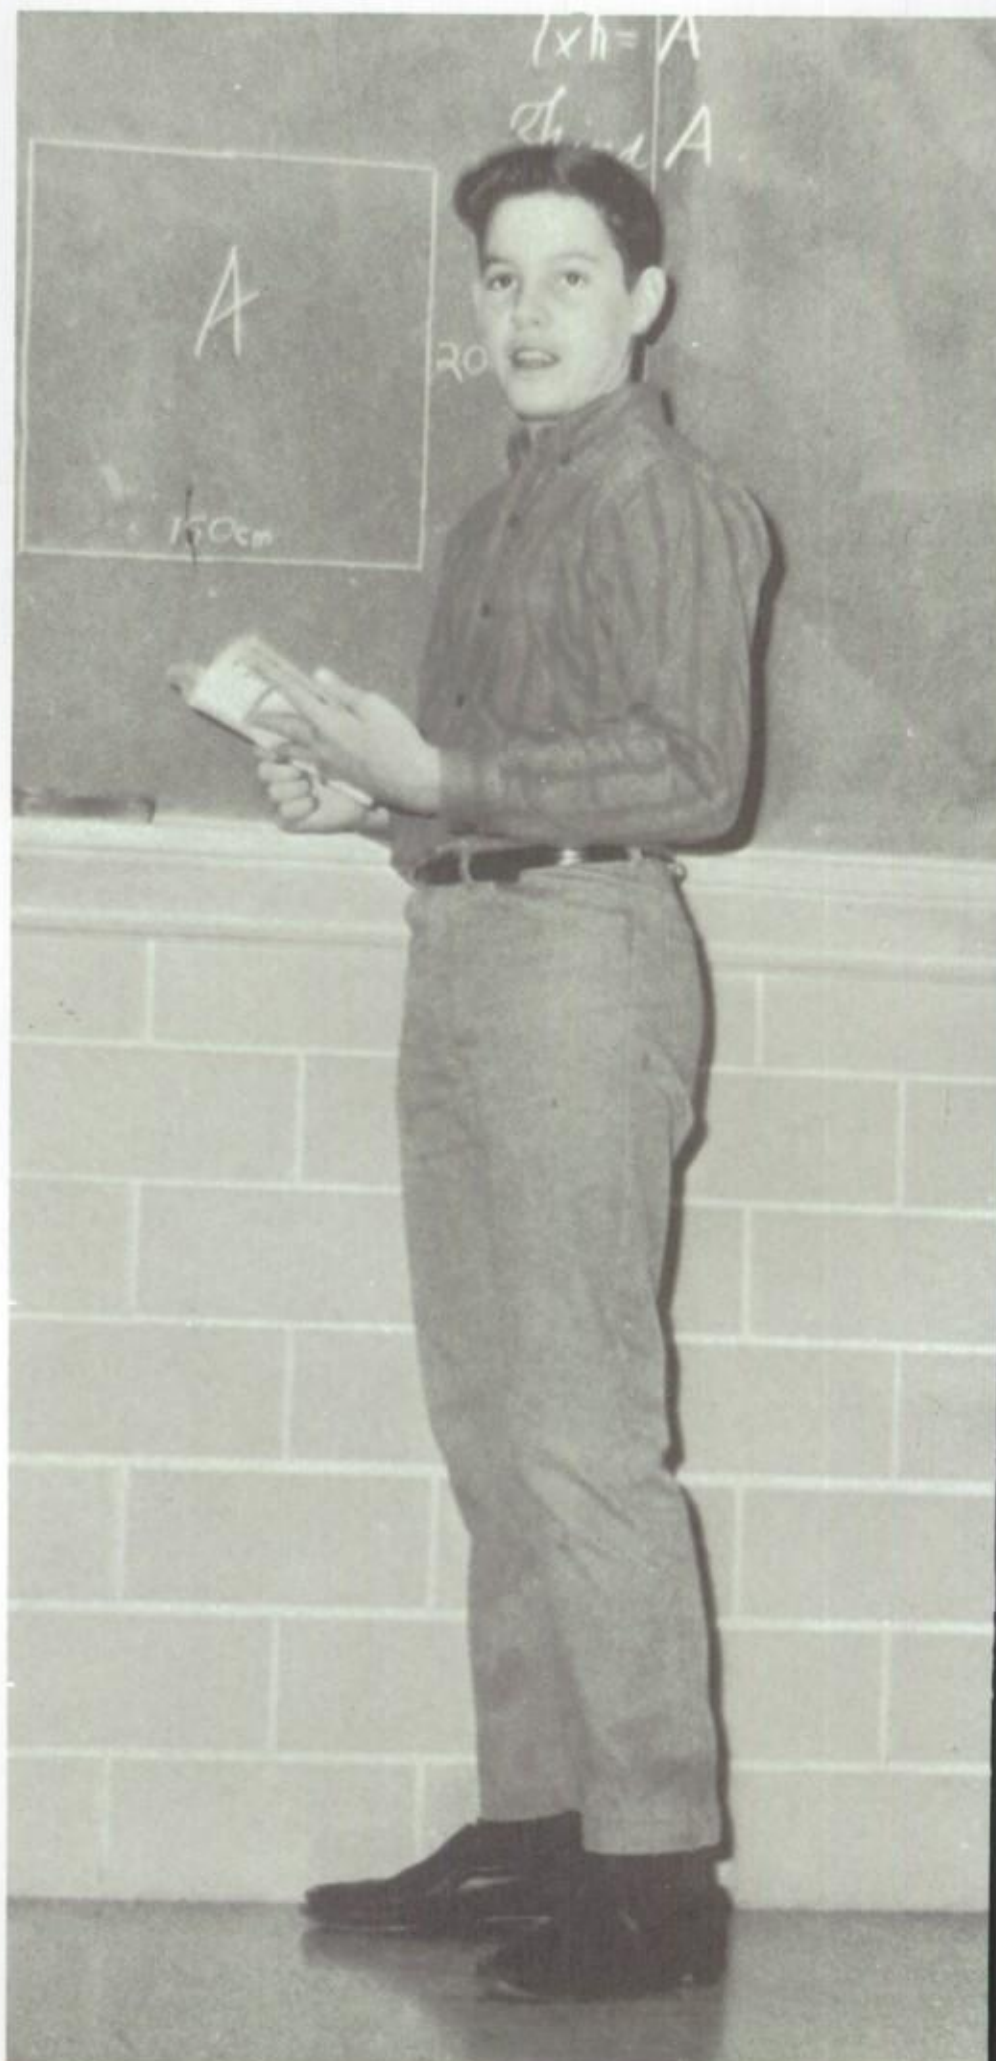

Complicated as it looks, this algebraic jumble of chalk poses no problem to such an adept student of advanced algebra as junior Tom Schank.

Maneuvering precision equipment, Rick Stover indicates to Ron Breidenbach the proper labeling of a diagram in mechanical drawing.

art, math demand

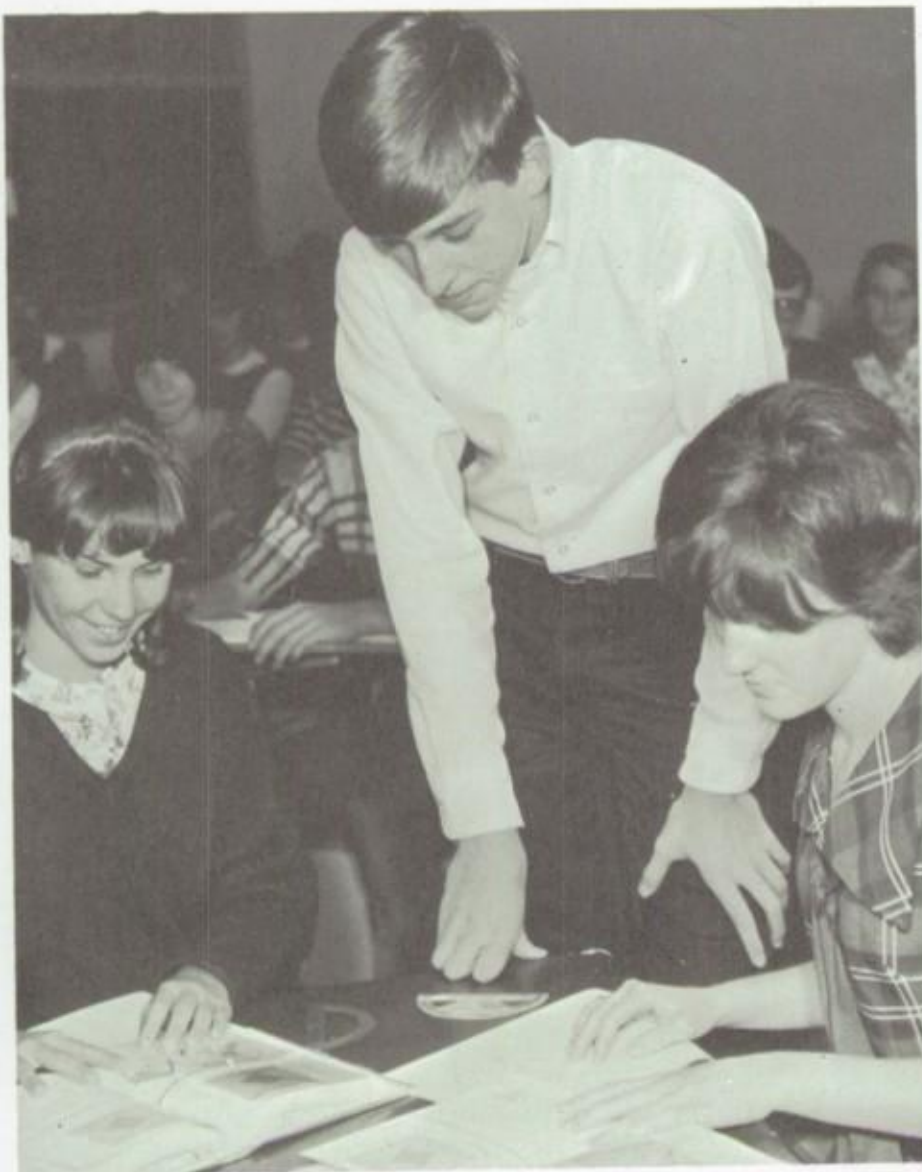

Freshman Michael Prenzlin stands ready to explain how to find the area of a rectangle, a typical problem of useful math.

much precision, practice, perseverance

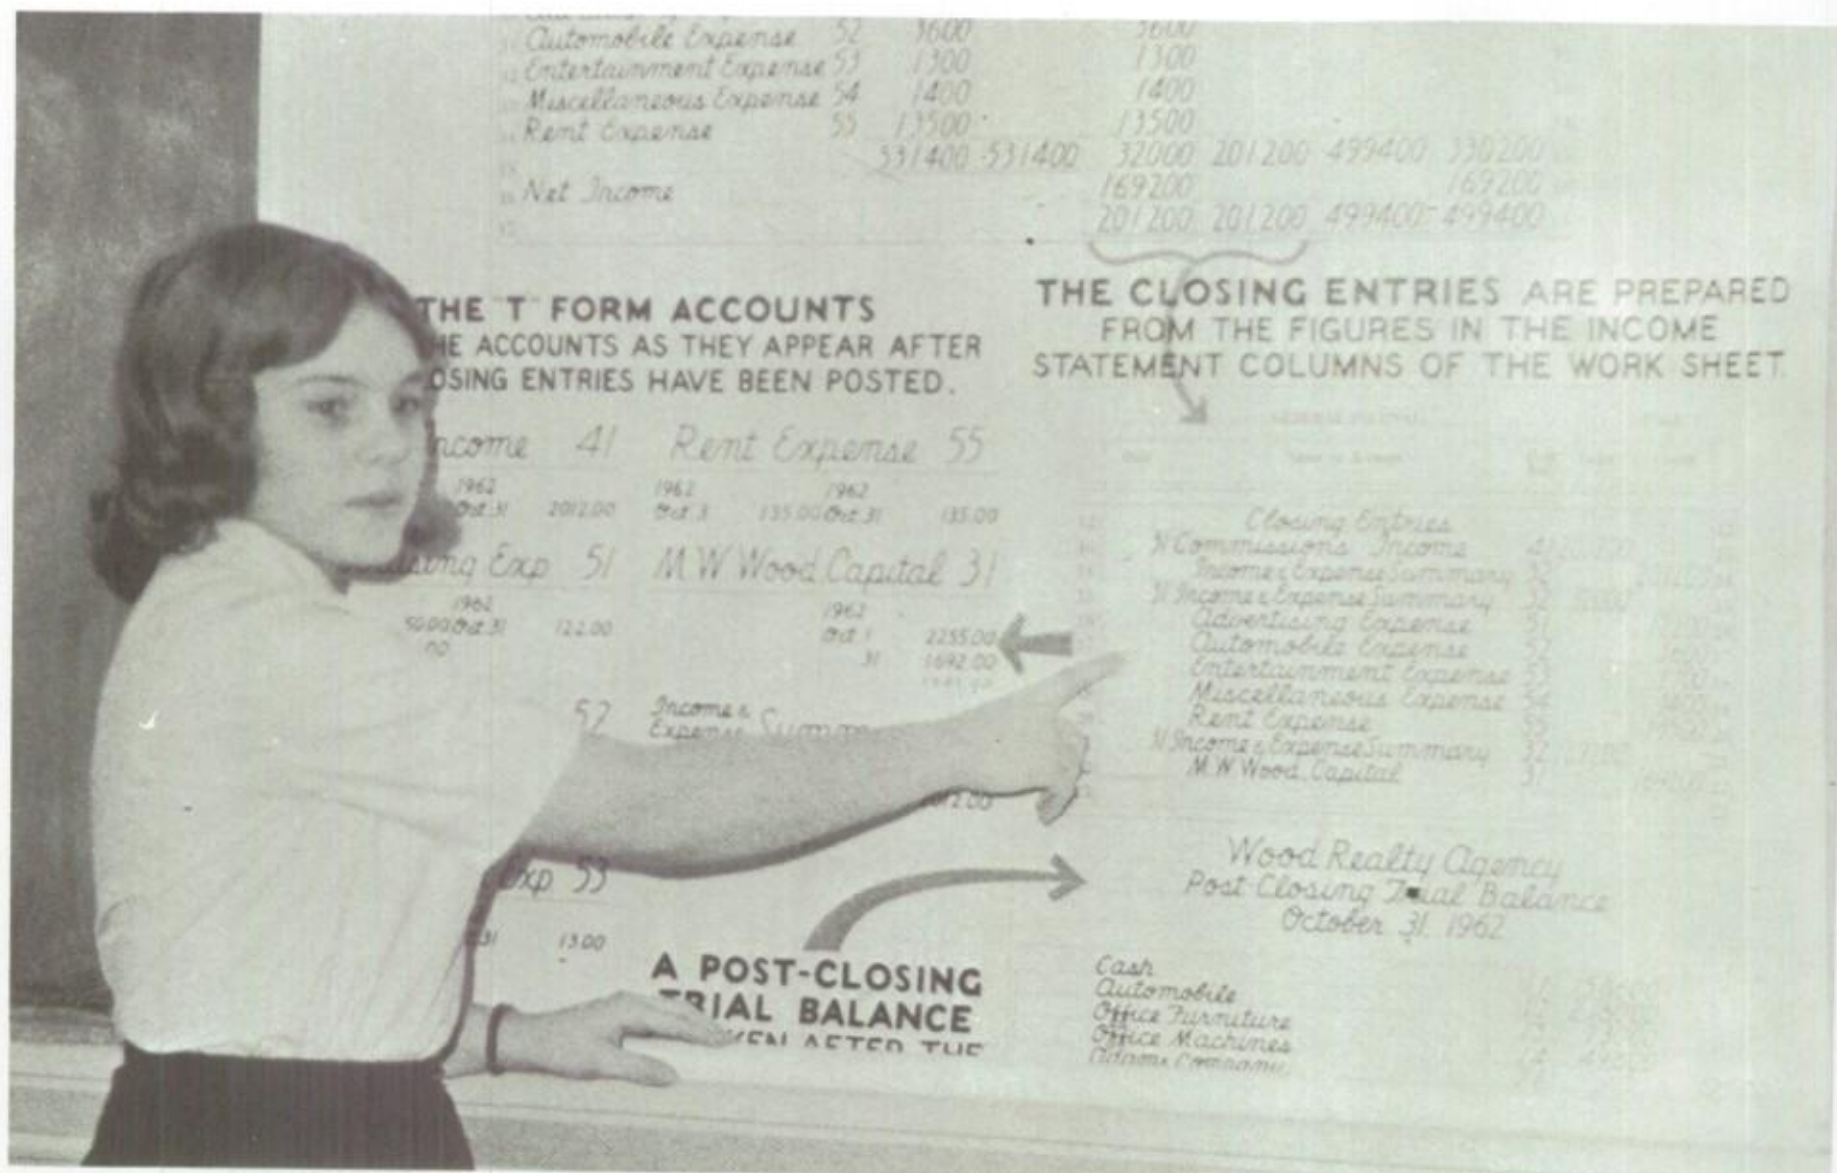

Leave it to Michael Herbert to find humor in his explanation of an analysis problem to Joseph Frisch, Elizabeth Ranker and Allen Daniel.

Pooling knowledge makes the solution of geometry problems easier for Laura Allman, Richard Puffenburger and Jane Weimerskirch as they study right triangles.

Scenic artists Helen Hoover and Margaret Shaver apply finishing touches to their model stage, a second-year art project.

As the little red arrows lead on and on, bookkeeping student Doris Kimmet seems to be a bit mystified by the intricacies of a balance sheet.

Although he lacks up-to-date equipment, Paul Smith pursues the practical applications of business arithmetic undaunted.

It is true that modern machines are designed to help reduce the need for thinking; office practice students Michael Seitz and Linda Schreiner discover, however, that it still takes brains to run them.

business skills, modern machines
alert students
to new horizons

Discussing current stock market reports, general business students Randall Company and David Brown interpret yards and yards of ticker tape.

First-year typists strive to develop spontaneous eye-to-book contact while acquiring speed and accuracy.

Seniors . . .

almost alumni . . .

self-assured or apprehensive they await the future, treasuring each moment yet, reluctant to let it slip into the past . . .

inheriting the lobby bench, a hand-me-down from each graduating while straining to hear the prompter's whispered cue . . .

pricing food and furniture practical preparation for future marriage . . . discussing everything from current events to currant wine in the "Bear's Den."

Having learned to criticize and to understand, to talk with God and to joke with friends, they go their ways . . .

taking with them a part of Calvert . . .

Judging from the casual manner in which he opens his locker, it seems that David Turner will never be a safe-cracker.

Books stacked and waiting, Stella Traxler, armed with a screwdriver, meets opposition as she attempts to open her locker on the opening day of school.

As he relaxes amid first-day confusion, Ralph Koerper, oblivious to any and all passers-by, calmly and methodically covers his newly-issued textbooks.

Sports . . .

Responding to the pressure of competition,
the excitement of victory and the discouragement of defeat, a group of boys becomes a team, earning the name Senecas . . .

smothering a groan into the mat . . .
following the motions of whirling blue-and-white-checkered cheerleaders . . .
facing flying baseballs, secure behind the bars of a catcher's mask . . . calling a time-out to tie dangling shoestrings.

Practicing endlessly to form a team that keeps calm . . .

generating the spirit that inspires students to cheer "We're proud of our team!" . . .

they polish rough vitality into the smooth skill of sports.

Checking through the next series of plays, head coach Paul Miletti prepares his squad to do battle.

After meeting defeat in a grinding contest against Mohawk, weary and sorrowing Seneca warriors offer a prayer in thanksgiving for God's protection.

Hungrily eyeing the goal posts, Mike Phillips advances for a touchdown against Gibsonburg.

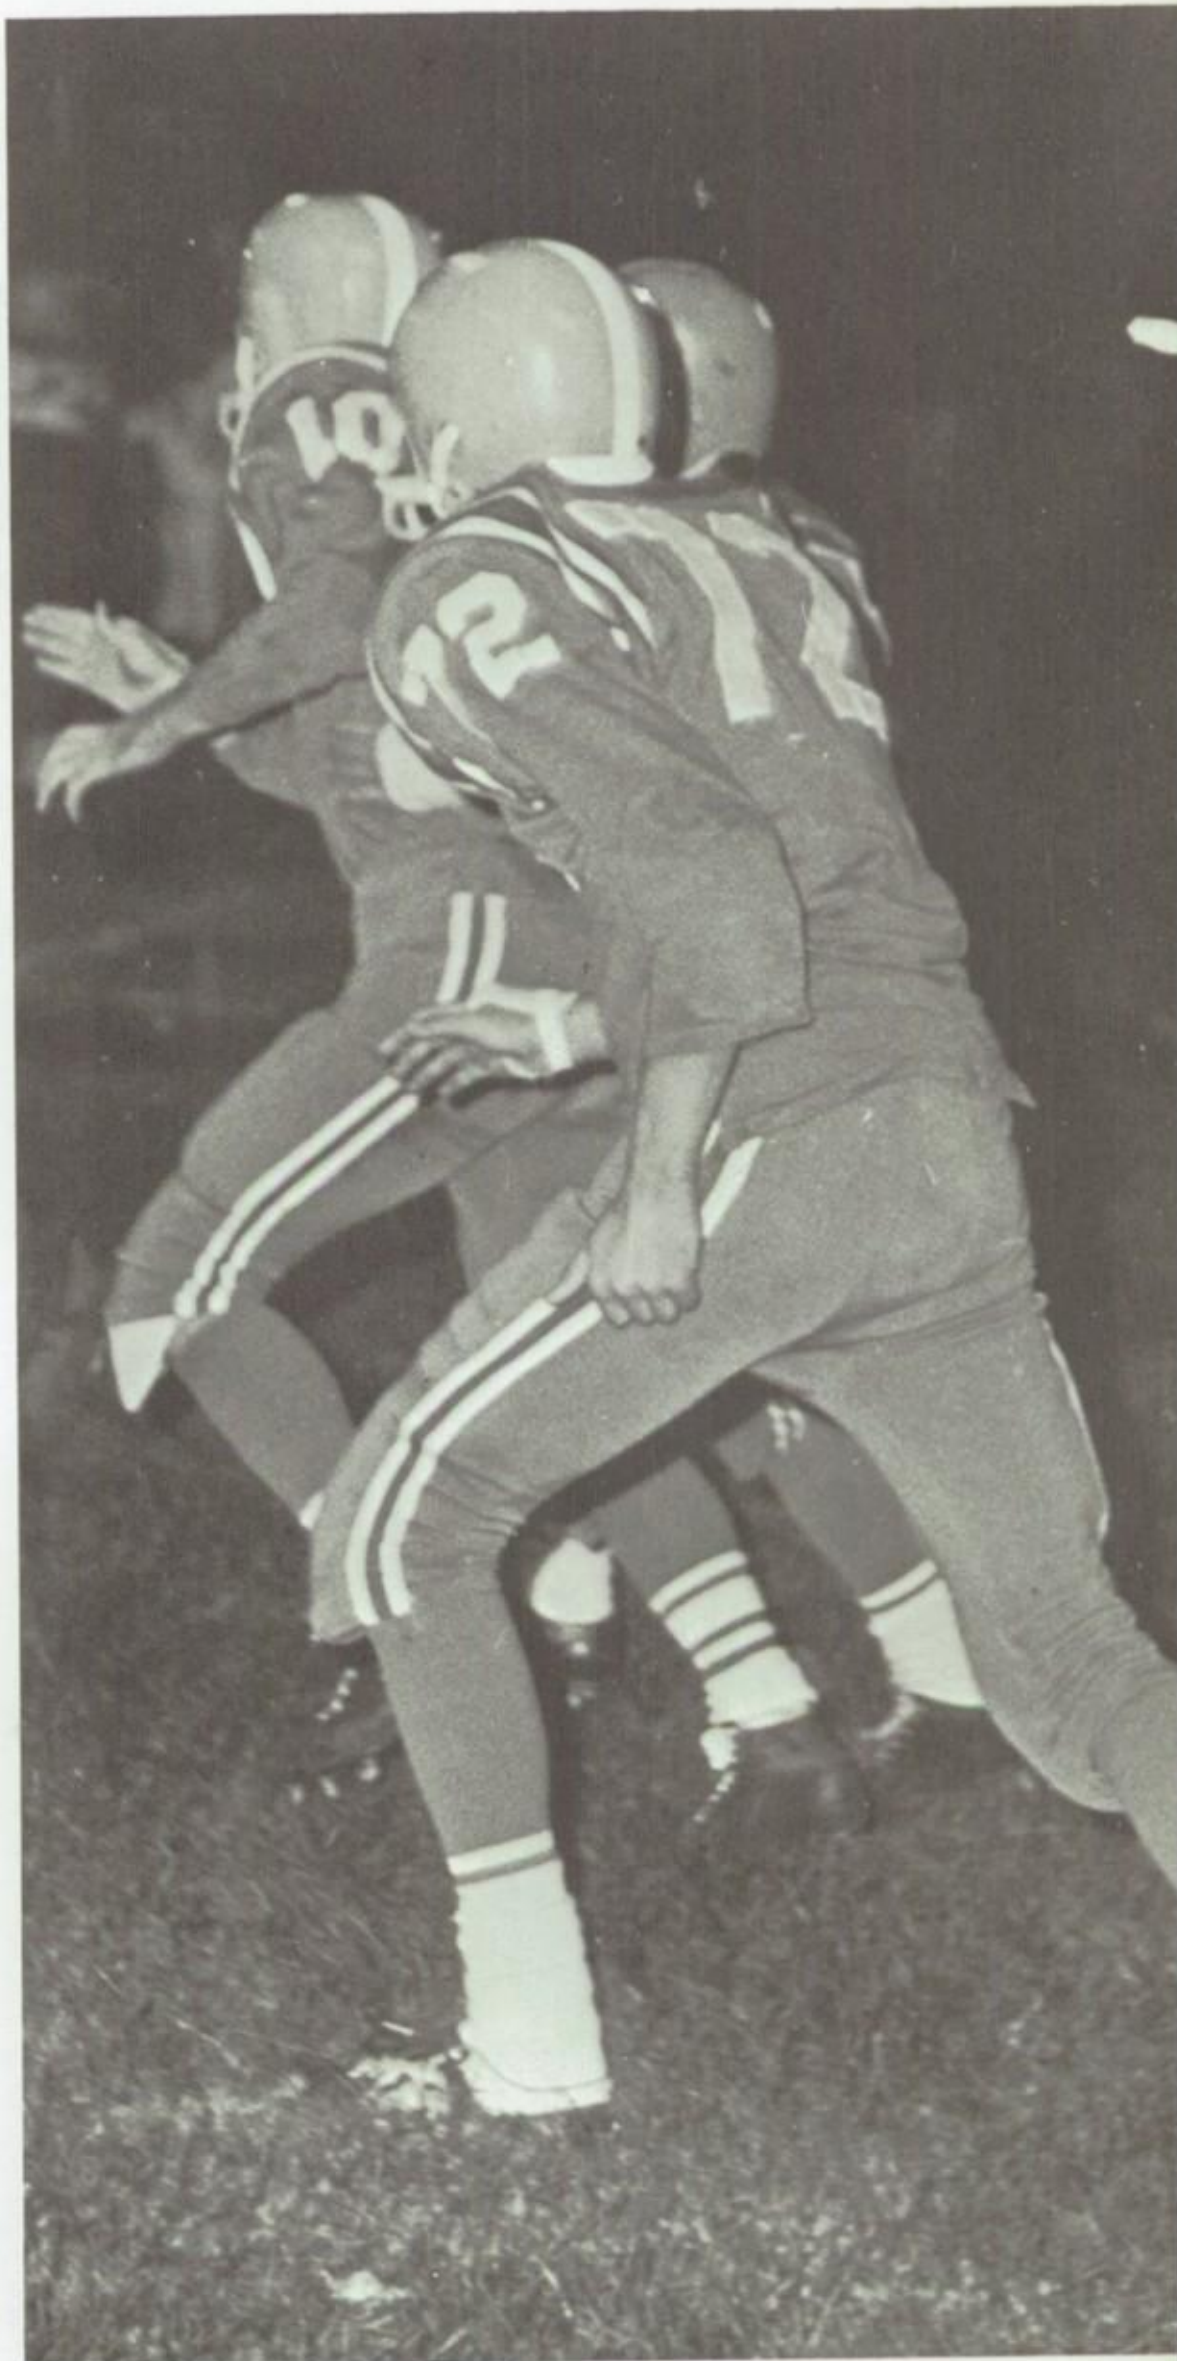

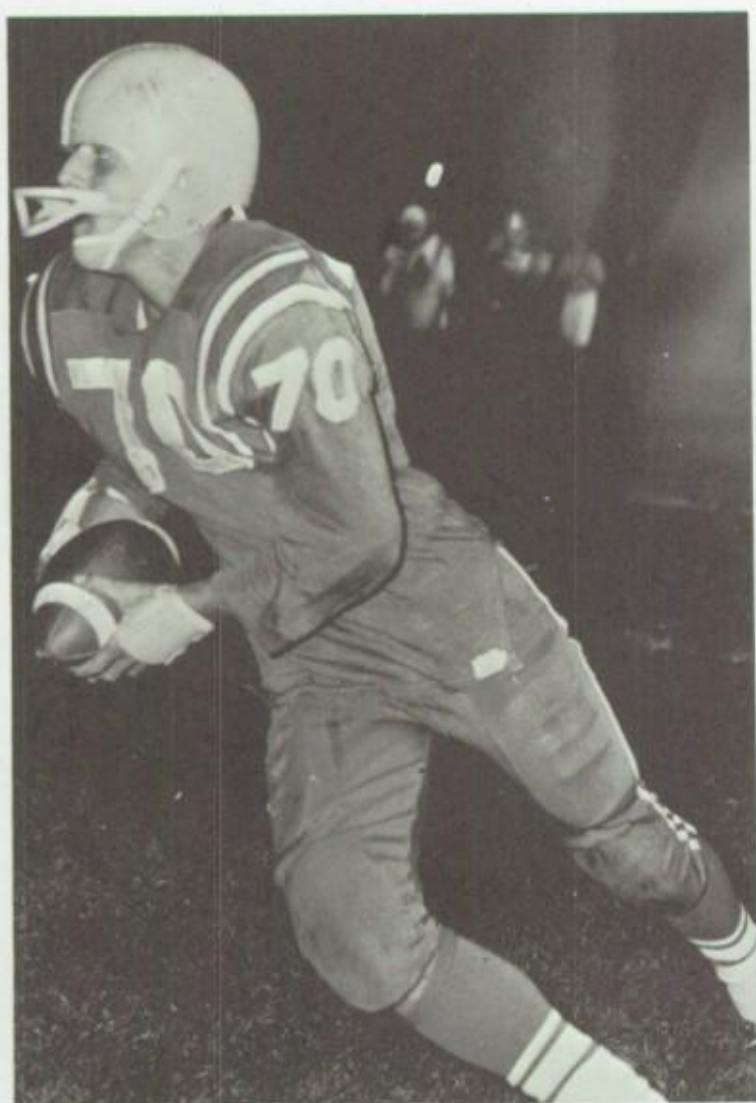

Rushing to the aid of an injured Seneca, head coach Paul Miletta, aided by managers Steve Kummerer and Allen Daniel, assist quarterback Skip Zalar to his feet.

injury, hard losses

A key interception, a fast jaunt down the field, and the Senecas, led by Steve Stover, chalk up another TD.

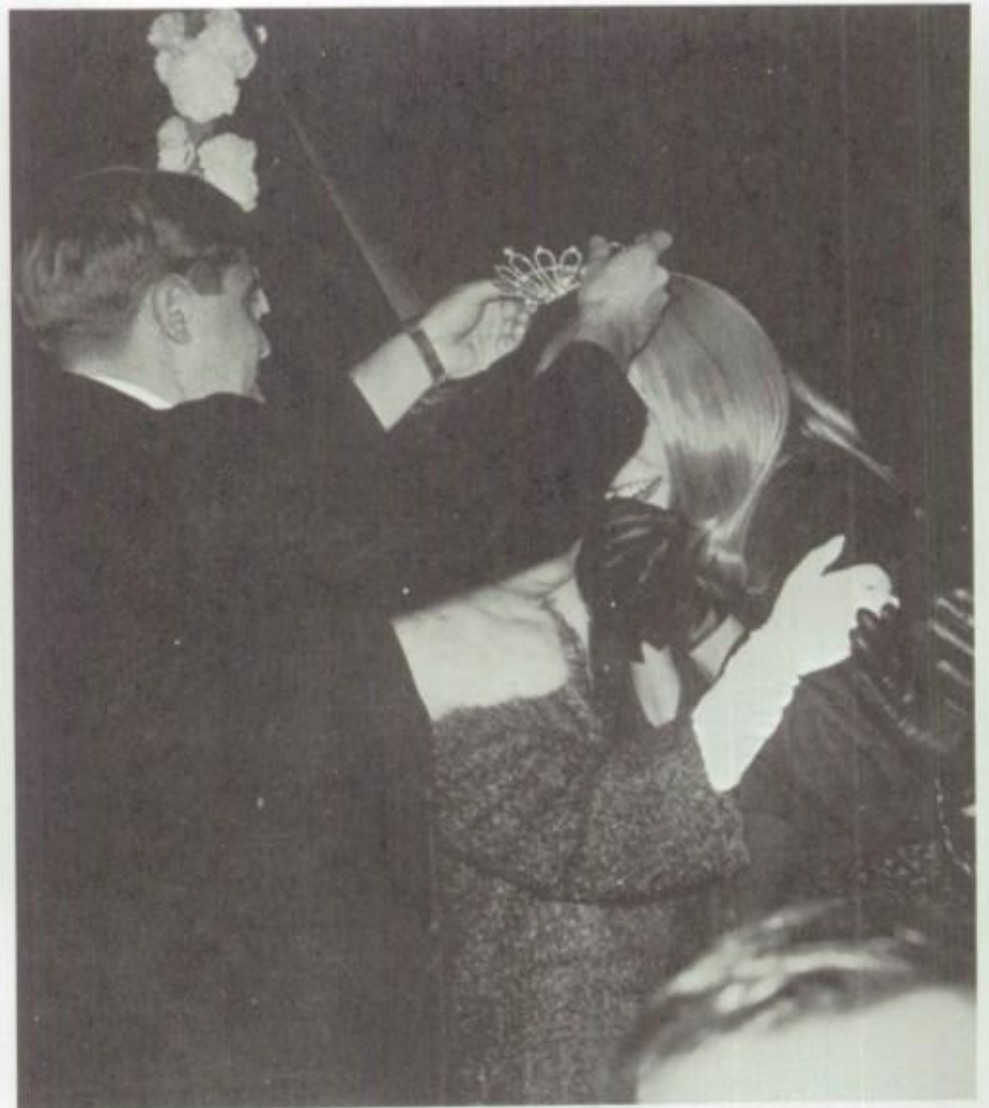

Rounding the end on a power seven sweep, Mike Phillips, Bill Lawson and Tom Bridinger lunge toward Lima defensive backs.

Sharing the hopes of the other Homecoming candidates, Ann Callaghan awaits that breathtaking moment when the seniors' choice will be announced to waiting crowds.

A crown, a hug from a friend, a cheer from the crowd: Richard Gardner officially opens the reign of Queen Ann at Homecoming 1966.

As Calvert gridmen block opposing St. Joseph Streaks, teammate Bill Steinmetz carries the pigskin for much-needed yardage.

Displaying the now-famous Seneca spirit, Mike Phillips tugs for every last inch as a rival Fremont Streak gets a grip on him.

Amid the clamor and confusion of Homecoming festivities, Monsignor Dunn welcomes a few moments to be alone with his thoughts.

enthusiastic scalp

After pulling down a long pass, Chip Boes turns, outjumps his opponent and goes for another two against Crestline.

Duly crowned and voicing regal fervor, Calvert's own king-for-a-day, "Chrissy Cool," accepts the applause of Chip Boes, Ron Corthell and Skip Zalar.

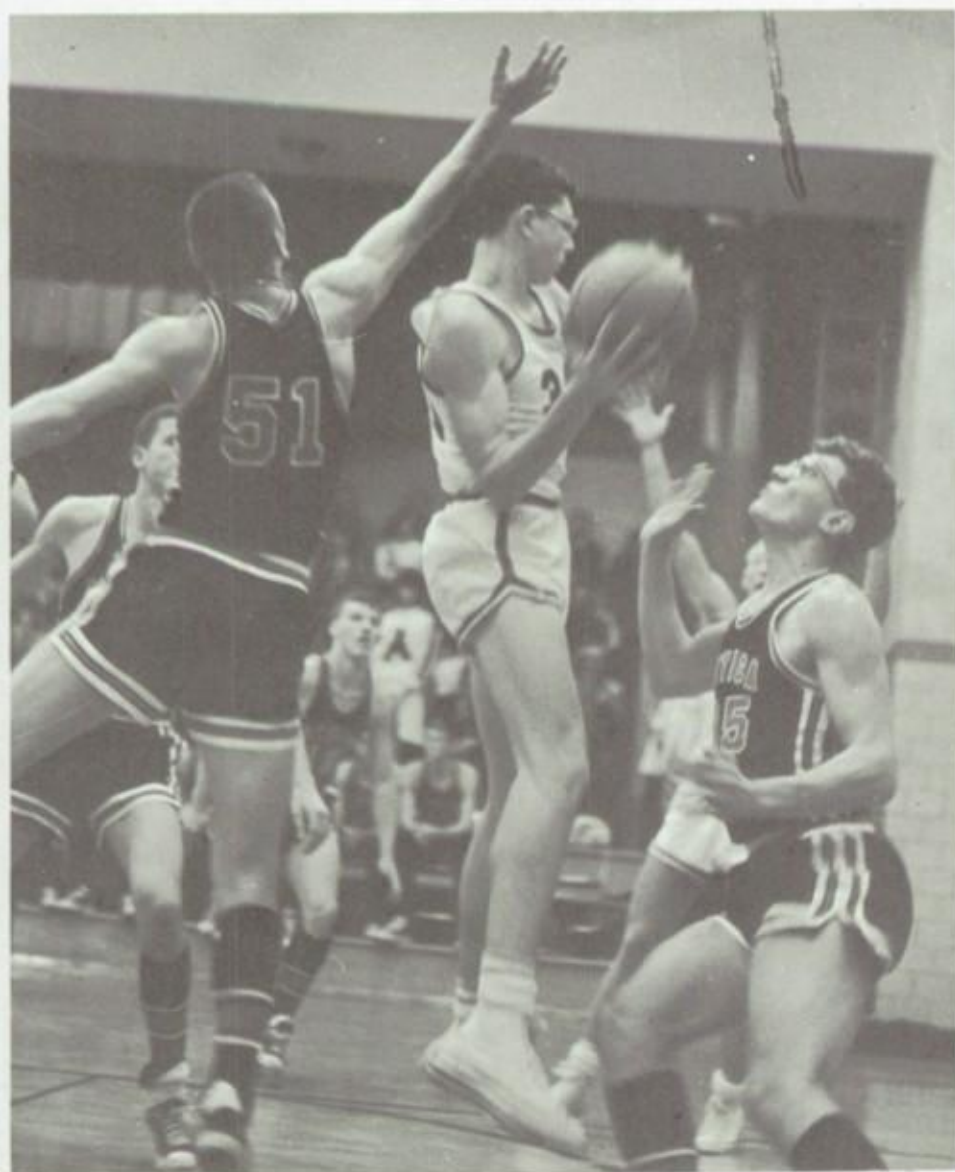

Penetrating the hoop for another score, forward Bill Carrigan drives through a St. Wendelin warrior.

Exuberant Senecas smother Chip Boes after watching him and his teammates knock the wind from Columbian's Tornadoes in the opening game of the Class AA Tournament.

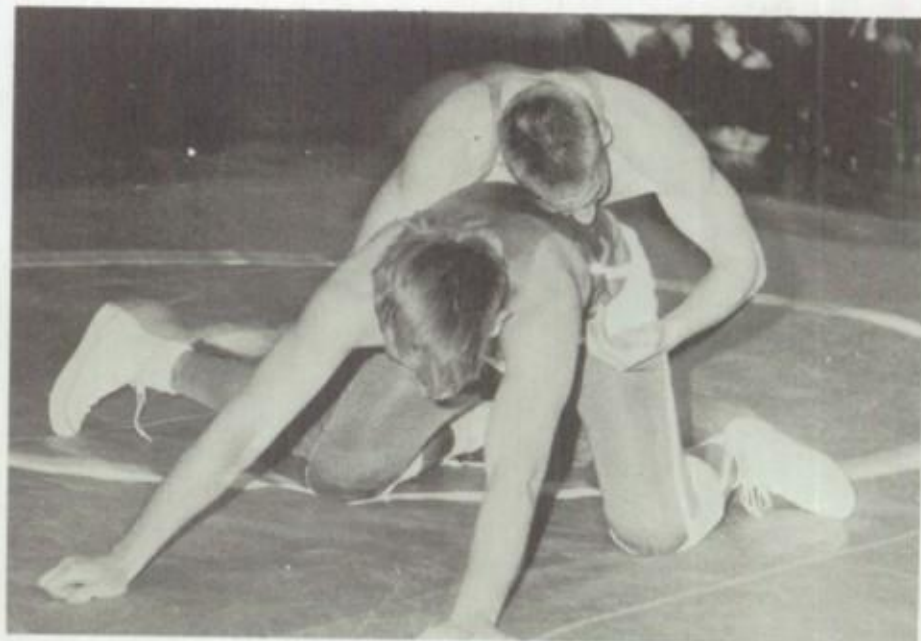

Calvert's caged crusader, Ron Studer, springs into action as he catches his Attica opponents off guard.

Crossing behind the backboard, Chris Klopp spins the ball in for a leaping two.

Calvert matman Allen Daniel, wearing a look of smug self-satisfaction, pins a rival wrestler.

Tom Wurm moves in on victory as he secures an advantage point over his foe.

Striving to down his Crestline opponent, lightweight Rick CortHELL spins to break a hold.

John Dunn gives the fairway a careful scrutiny before teeing off for another round of golf.

band completes successful concert, marching seasons

Football stadiums seldom boast a trio as "sharp" as Calvert's majorettes — Darlene LaFontaine, Anne Siebenaller and Betsy Blust.

To the strains of "Cotton Candy," Calvert's band rehearses intricate formations for a favorite half-time show.

"Have whistle; will travel." Drum major Mark Leahy competently leads the band, occasionally without even a whistle.

Even before the marching season opens, band members begin to perfect half-time performances by long strenuous practice sessions on the football field.

All other guests having departed, Princess Margaret (Gwen Brodman) and Captain Tarnitz (Phillip Omlor) waltz alone to "Just We Two."

"If I could only remember that B flat!" Weary Glee Club accompanist Jane Elchert devotes many leisure hours to another brilliant musical season.

Knowing tomorrow will bring loneliness, Prince Karl Franz (Karl Zalar) and Kathy (Linda Baumgartner) spend their last nostalgic moments together.

songs of 'student prince' highlight spring operetta

University students (John Dunn, Ronald Corthell and James Kastner) sing merrily as they join barmaid Gretchen (Linda Seitz) in several boisterous choruses of "Drink, Drink, Drink."

"Seventy-six trombones" might be needed to lead "a big parade," but when Calvert wants carolers, student princes or a concert choir, it summons its seventy-five-voice Glee Club.

Anger and frustration contort the features of Darlene Frankhart, in the role of Ann Gilbreth, as she wails: "You don't understand! You don't understand at all!"

Intense concern marks the faces of the Gilbreths as they await the results of Ann's examination.

Surrounded by participating students, Fr. Lamantia daily offers the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass for the intentions of the student body and their families.

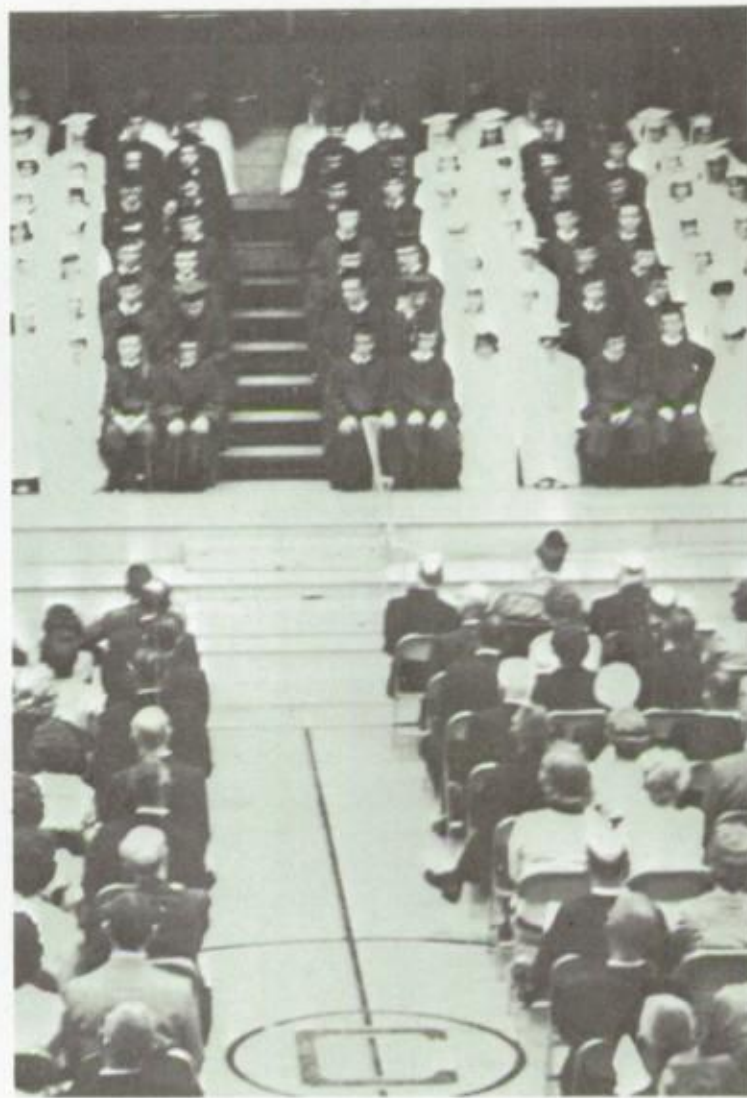

Junior and senior vocalists lead the student body in corporate singing of folk-song hymns at the daily celebration of the Mass.

of memorable events inspire graduates

Valedictorian Fred Doecker and salutatorian Barbara Smith, honored for their high scholastic averages, prepare to deliver their addresses at commencement exercises.

Having successfully achieved their goal, seniors are honored at graduation exercises by the presence of families and friends.

Assembled to show their love and admiration for the Mother of God, the entire student body participates with solemn devotion in May Crowning ceremonies.

Selected by vote of the Senior and Junior Classes, Fred Doecker and Ann Bursa crown Mary Queen of May.

staff executes 'operation deadline'

Cartoonist Phillip Omlor and photographer Regina Zirger enliven the Calvert News with caricatures and photos of student life.

Completed columns mean only the beginning of work for typists Alice Smith, Kathleen Schetter, Deborah Dosh, Kathleen Snyder and Susan Fleck.

Editor-in-chief John Dunn (center), with page editors Jane Elchert, Ronald Corthell, Ann Bursa and Linda Ranker, prepares to plunge into plans for the next issue.

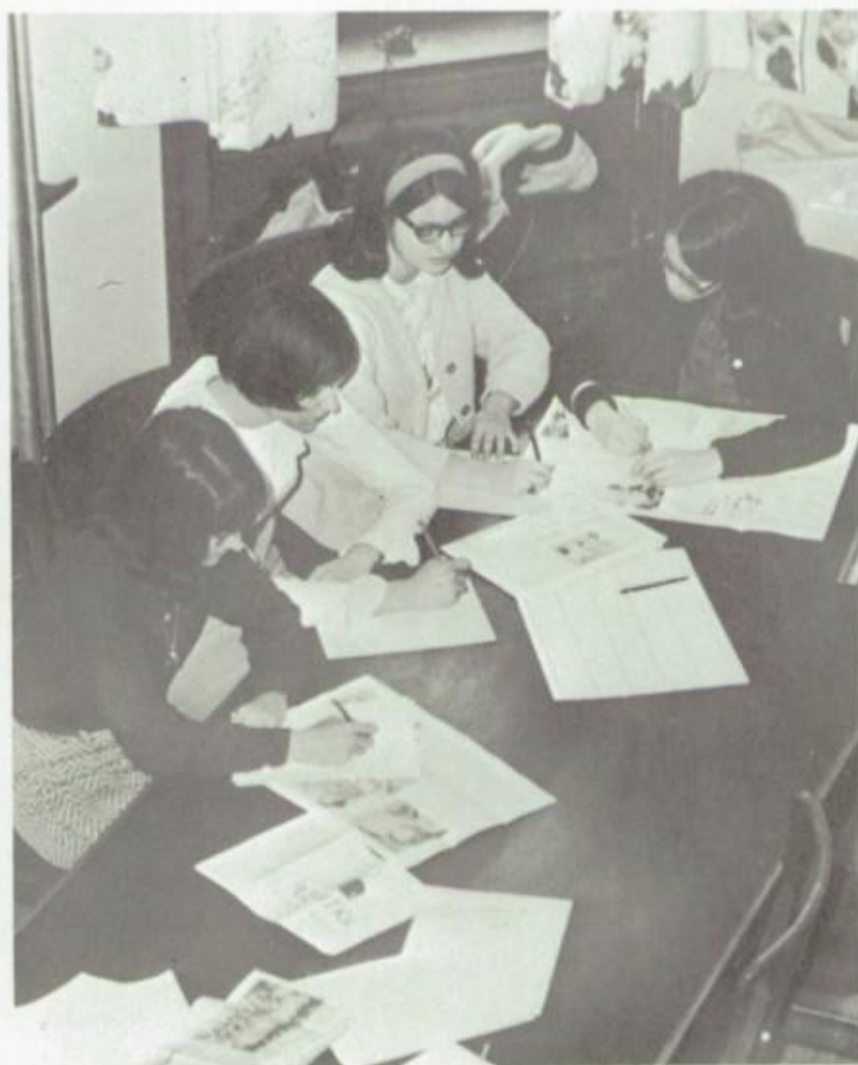

Searching for new ideas, special writers Fred Doepker, Christine Maloney, William Carrigan and Ann Siebenaller scan news columns for exchange papers.

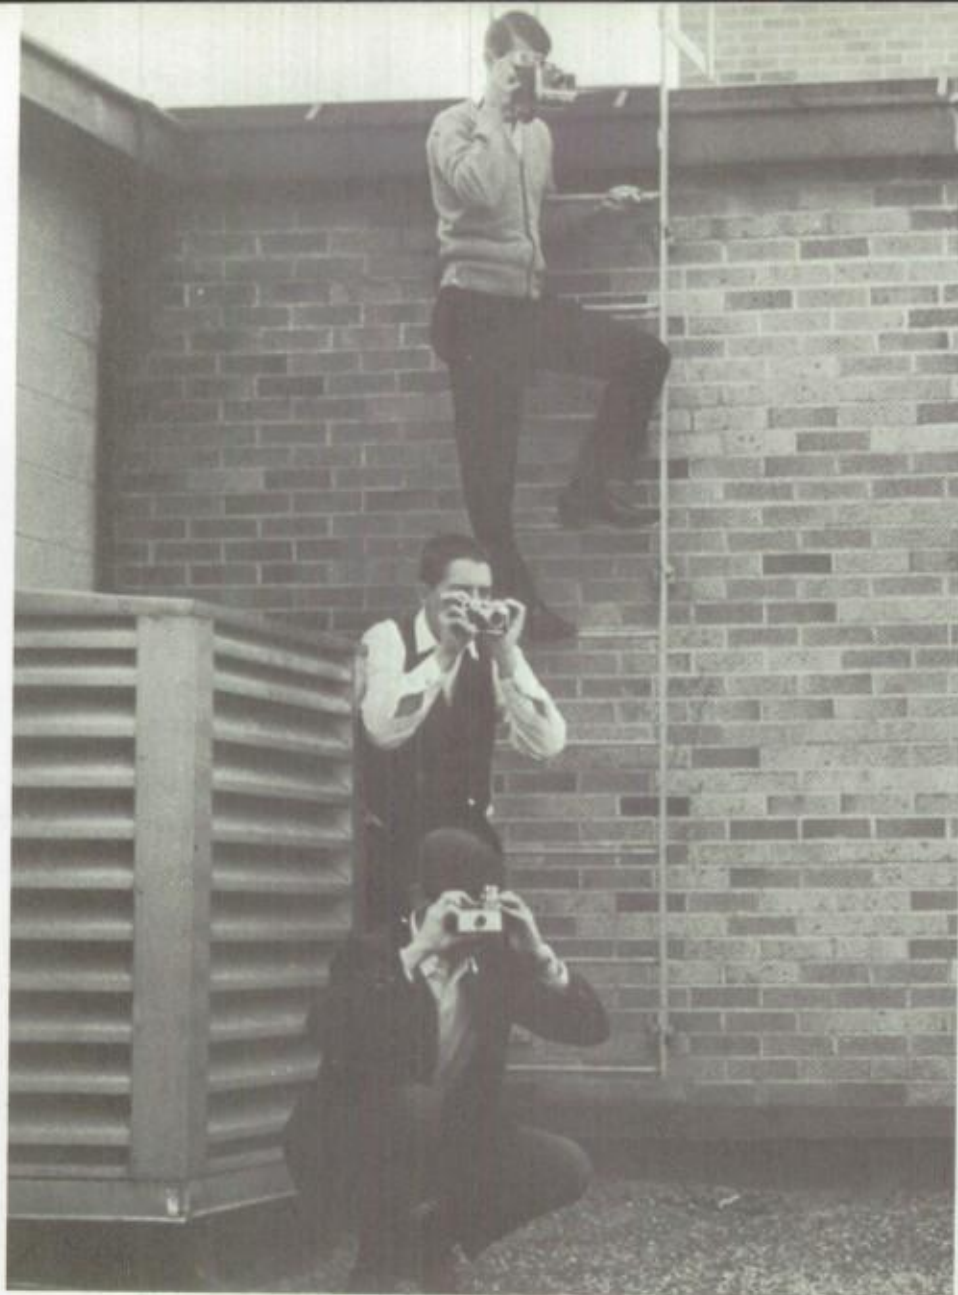

Alumni and patrons promptly receive every issue because of the efforts of the circulation staff: Michael Boehler, Robert Klaiss, Virginia Terry, Ronald Albus, Susan Schultz, Janet Uhl and Joseph Hartzell.

Beat reporters Ann Marie Lucius, Jane Smith, Carolyn Aiello and Elaine Wank measure and relay the pulse of school activities to Calvert students.

Pondering, struggling, creating — serious tasks for senior writers J. Hole, R. A. Collier, R. Hafley, S. Black, A. Fisher, L. Boehler, B. Main, M. Koller, M. Moes and P. Saad.

Significant events are always in focus for yearbook photographers Gerard Pahl, Mark Nevius and Paul Smith.

June . . .

and a rush of memories . . .

discovering the human side of that formidable faculty member . . .
receiving an unexpected A on a semester exam . . . feeling the closeness of Christ during the Mass . . .

hearing again the sad melodies
of "The Student Prince" . . . marching expectantly to the tournament game . . . making tons of flowers for the prom . . .

wearing the bittersweet robes of graduation.

The last cheer echoes down the empty hall . . .

another year passes . . .

another mosaic is complete with the guiding line of knowledge,
the rugged texture of sports,
the bright color of activities . . .

a mosaic of Calvert High School.

Bill

Bill
To a real cool
freshman riding around with his dog

Billy
To a real sweet
kid. Good luck
Surgery (70)

Dave,
To a real nice guy who's really fun to be with. All the time we've had English class. Fun!
Keep up with your
Dad. Don't game
and may
Love ya,
Bec

BILLY
To My Friend AND
BUDDY OUT AT THE LAKE.
Good Luck with the SPORTS
AND STAY OUT OF TROUBLE.

RANDY Billy
To a real cool
Freshman kid, and a neat kid to mess
around with
Ron "70"

KOKS
To a kid who has been a friend all through school and this year is in almost all my classes (especially Agnes). Good Luck with those meals you cook for your Dad.
Tom

BILLY
A real nice kid
in all life
RED DOG

To a "kiddie"
A real neat kid who has a great place out at the lake and is in the lake in the afternoon. Love ya, Kousky
I'll miss you David keep your phone from 7112

Dave,
To a real swell guy who's a blast to have around. Keep that great personality
you'll go far. Sweet
"10"

Dave,
To a real one who's always fun to be with. Keep smiling. I hope we can keep having as much fun as we do now. Good luck in all your attempt.
Dianne

Billy
To a neat kid
who likes to golf
Good Luck
Joe

Kubs,
To a real neat guy who I met the very first day of school.
I hope we always have a long friendship and endure and problems with Doggie let us know.
Kaps "10"

Kub,
To a kid who's a real riot in bus class and who's a budding artist. Keep up all your drawings of cars and many other things and some day
you might be as good as Picasso or Rembrandt
or some other good artists.
Hang in there and keep cool.
"10" (I hope)
Paul
GOOBER

The Billys
To a real cool feat who's got a lot of
puck wit & religion.
Good luck with your golfing!
Joe

Billy
To the second best caddy. Guess who's best? Don't ever stop being a nice boy. Ha Ha
